Campaign ad under fire

IS COLE
Staff Writer

There is clear evidence that there has been a violation of the Media Limitations Act by the Jake Garn campaign, according to Peter Billings, campaign manager for Wayne Owens.

Billings was referring to the ad placed by Hardy Roberts of Orem. It was in the form of a letter to Roberts' two daughters in which he criticizes the Owens' campaign.

"There are financial limitations on media expenditures," said Billings. "We feel that this ad is a way to try and get around this rule."

However, according to Garn campaign workers, they had no knowledge of the contents of the ad and therefore are not in violation of campaign laws.

"I wrote every word of it and I paid for it out of my own pocket," said Roberts. "I am just an independent citizen concerned with the issues, and the Garn people had nothing to do with it."

"Garn had nothing to do with it," said Mark Hurst, Jake Garn press secretary. "He was just as surprised as everyone else."

Wayne Owens has requested an investigation by the U.S. Senate secretary in connection with the ad which cost $1,800, according to Billings.

Hurst said Roberts had been in touch with Garn headquarters and had said he wanted to run the ad. Hurst maintained, however, that the Garn people had nothing to do with the content or payment of the ad.

Referring to the content of the ad, Billings said the text was full of distortions and innuendoes. Roberts said that he believed the information was true. He added that he collected the information from Owens literature, as well as other printed media.

Wayne Owens held a press conference in Salt Lake City Monday morning in which he talked about Roberts' ad. Roberts attended the press conference and discussed the ad with Owens.

"I didn't back down from anything," said Roberts.

The main issue is whether or not a violation has been committed, said Billings. He explained that a valid violation would be turned over to the Justice Department.

Oaks advocates telefund support

In an open letter to the BYU student body, Pres. Dallen H. Oaks has urged students to support the telefund program.

The full text of his letter is as follows:

"I am pleased to inform you that the architectural work has been completed, all authorizations and appropriations have been obtained from our Board of Trustees, and the contract has been signed for construction of the large addition to the Harold B. Lee Library. Construction will commence with the groundbreaking ceremony at 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 29th. All students are invited to attend. Elder Gordon B. Hinckley, our Devotional Assembly speaker that day, will represent the Board of Trustees.

"It now remains for us to complete our obligation to raise our $3,300,000 share of the construction cost. We are making excellent progress, and I am confident that we will attain our goal if all of us do our part.

"Our students' fund-raising efforts and personal contributions have been effective and generous. These efforts will continue with the Student Development Association's Student Telefund during the month of November. This telefund has my complete approval and support.

"I urge each of you to support the Telefund by responding with a contribution. I commend those of you who are volunteering to assist in making calls. This Telefund will help us meet our needs at BYU and thereby free church funds to help teach and assist our brothers and sisters in under-developed nations.

"Although student funds are limited, I am nevertheless hopeful that most BYU students will be able to contribute at least one dollar for each month of current enrollment at BYU, which will be $4 a semester or $8 for the conventional school year.

"It is too much for an individual student's circumstances, I hope he or she will contribute whatever is possible. I hope each student will make some contribution to our library fund."

Land use issue to be discussed

Land Use Planning, a major issue of this year's campaign, will be discussed at 12:10 p.m. today in 321 ELWC. The discussion is part of this year's Political Week activities.

State Sen. Karl Snow and State Rep. Willard Gardner, both BYU professors, will each present their views on the topic and then will answer questions from the audience.

Political displays set up

Election information on major races in 11 western states will be available to students all week in the ELWC Reception Center as a part of political week.

Information on voter registration and current events will also be available, according to Steve Lewis, political week chairman.

Four tables devoted to Republicans and Democrats for Utah political races will contain literature concerning national, state, county and local elections.

A row of divider screens along the eastern side of the Reception Center will display Republican and Democratic literature from Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, Lewis said.

Due to a lack of response from some of the headquarters, however, several of the displays are noticeably lacking in adequate information.

Lewis said any students who have information from their respective states that is not on display are encouraged to submit this information to the ASBYU Academics office on the fourth floor, ELWC.

Any information which is received during the week from the various parties or from students will be displayed immediately, he said.

According to Lewis, Phi Sigma Alpha, the political science club, as well as the Utah Intercollegiate Assembly, a student lobbying group, also have displays in the Reception Center explaining their goals and aims.

Sheide must have heard footsteps as unidentified man comes in from behind.

WAC title may depend on Sheide

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

In August, a Western Athletic Conference football coach ventured that one player had the capacity of deciding the conference championship "if he gets a hot hand."

The coach was referring to Brigham Young quarterback Gary Sheide, who had nothing if not a hot hand at the present time. Sheide has thrown for five touchdowns in each of his last two games, and has 15 TD tosses in his last four outings, all WAC affairs. The Cougars have logged a 3-0 record during that stretch and have established themselves as serious title contenders. Powerful Arizona, meanwhile, was the most recent victim of Sheide's aerial antics. The 16th-ranked Wildcats bowed to BYU 37-13 Saturday and topped out of first place.

Betham and Blane score
BYU flanker John Betham and tailback Jeff Blane each scored two of the Cougars' touchdowns in the 24-yarder tosses from Sheide as the Cougars moved virtually at will, building a 28-7 halftime lead. Two of the scores followed interceptions, and the Cougars defense wound up with five thefts in all.

"Arizona's speed had us scared, and we were surprised to get five interceptions," Cougar Coach LaVell Edwards said. "I think this is the best defense we've ever had at BYU."

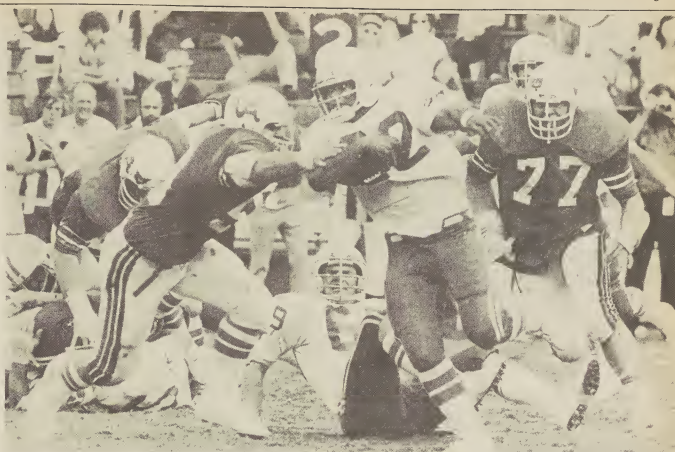

Arizona, which dropped to 3-1 in the WAC and 5-2 overall, took the opening kickoff and scored in five plays, with quarterback Bruce Hill hitting split end Scott Piper on a 50-yard pass play for the touchdown.

Not concerned

"I wasn't really concerned about that first score," Edwards said. "We hadn't even had the ball yet."

The Wildcats were throttled the rest of the way and failed to mount a sustained offensive. Their only other TD came in the third quarter when Willie Hamilton took a screen pass and streaked 70 yards down the sideline. That cut the cougar lead to 28-13, but Sheide hooked up with Betham again for a 24-yarder in the final quarter to end the threat.

"We played the poorest game since I've been here," Arizona Coach Jim Young

Millions spent on Ali-Foreman fight tonight

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP)

The richest and, perhaps, strangest heavyweight title fight ever matches two black Americans in an African nation seeking to showcase itself as proof that black men on this continent are in firm control of their destiny.

The Zaire government of Mobutu Sese Seko is staging the meeting between challenger Muhammad Ali and champion George Foreman to show it has arrived as a full-fledged nation from its civil war-torn days when it was the Belgian Congo.

The fight is scheduled at 4 a.m. local time Wednesday to allow it to be shown on closed circuit television at 10 p.m. EST Tuesday in the United States.

Millions spent

Millions have been spent to bring off this match of Ali, the brook and outspoken man who is the world's best known sports figure, and Foreman, a huge, brooding, unbroken man, whose eye cut forced the fight to be postponed from Sept. 25.

Each fighter is to receive a record $5 million for the match that once was billed as $50 million extravaganza. But problems caused at least partially by postponement have prompted one prestigious U.S. accounting firm hired by the government to estimate the fight will gross less than $19 million. That would still be enough to make most of the promoters a profit.

Promoters listed

The promoters are an American closed circuit company, a British leisure corporation and the Zaire government, which is paying preflight expenses of the fighters and receiving 43 per cent of the take. The government also turned out to be a Swiss investment company which put up the $10 million for Foreman and Ali.

Communications, by telex and satellite, failed badly in the days preceding Foreman's injury. Journalists' copy was censored to remove critical references. An American writer who wrote critical stories was unable to get back into the country for the fight, which is being held in an outdoor soccer stadium during the African rainy season.

American tourists cheated
Americans who purchased expensive tours to Zaire for the Sept. 25 fight were already en route when Foreman was injured in training, and they did not get their money back. They were given a three-day music festival in return for the tour price that was as high as $2,800.

The two fighters have prepared for this match in ways that match their dissimilar styles.

Ali, whose 32-year-old body is a major issue in this fight, has praised black Africans as being his people, talked constantly and warned of the damage he will inflict upon his opponent, whom he calls the "Mummy."

Foreman secluded
Foreman has kept himself

Open 7-11 nightly
till Halloween

secluded, refusing to talk very often even though Ali has ridiculed him for such things as dancing in the Olympic ring wearing an American flag after he won a gold medal in 1968. And the government continues to promote itself. On Monday, President Mobutu received both fighters. All around Kinshasa, there are signs of a growing country and pictures of Mobutu with his sayings urging his countrymen on in the name of black independence.

Corporate researcher to lecture

An associate of the Russian Research Center at Harvard University will discuss the topic "Multi-National Corporations" Thursday at 10 a.m. in the Varsity Theater.

As part of Political Week, Herbert L. Sawyer will be guest speaker at an American Perspectives Lecture sponsored by the Academics Office, according to Larry Hurd, administrative assistant in the Academics Office.

Sawyer graduated from Tufts University in Massachusetts in 1962 with a bachelor of arts degree in government and later received a doctorate in international affairs at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Hurd said.

Before attaining his current position at Harvard University, Sawyer was chairman of the Department of government at Bentley College, Massachusetts, visiting professorial lecturer at George Washington University and lecturer in Russian at Boston University.

NEW YORK — Some 15,000 persons at a Madison Square Garden rally for Puerto Rican independence heard speakers, including actress Jane Fonda and Communist activist Angela Davis, support the professed goals of terrorists who bombed several Manhattan banks last weekend.

A number of the speakers at the Sunday gathering also said that they had no quarrel with the terrorists' methods.

Colder winter predicted

WASHINGTON — Chances are 14-to-1 that this winter will be colder than last year, government experts said Monday in urging consumers to begin thinking about conserving heating fuel.

A statement released by the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said consumers should start lowering their thermostats earlier this fall to achieve fuel savings, because of anticipated colder temperatures.

Cohen: Patty told to leave town

LOS ANGELES — Former gangster Mickey Cohen said he had located Patricia Hearst and her fellow Symbionese Liberation Army fugitives in Cleveland, Ohio, but then suggested the trio leave town.

Cohen told The Associated Press during the weekend that Miss Hearst was "pretty well situated" in the black community of Cleveland. He said he believed the fugitive newspaper heiress and William and Emily Harris had been living in Cleveland "up until 13 or 14 days ago."

U. S. doesn't want doctor back

MOSCOW — A doctor who gave up his American citizenship 17 years ago to live in the Soviet Union says he has renounced his Soviet citizenship. But the United States government won't give him back his American citizenship or give him an immigrant's visa.

Dean C. Hoxsey, 48, said he renounced his Soviet citizenship because Soviet authorities refused to grant him an exit visa.

Chancellor's party loses ground

BORN, West Germany — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's prestige has suffered a sharp setback in his socialist party's first electoral test since he replaced Willy Brandt in May.

The conservatives gained in two major state elections Sunday. The chief factor was believed to be fear of unemployment and uncertainty about the economy despite Schmidt's repeated reminders that West Germany has lower unemployment and inflation rates than any other industrialized country.

Sen. Kennedy tells actions following 1969 car accident

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says that after Mary Jo Kopechne drowned at Chappaquiddick, he had hoped for several hours that she somehow survived.

Kennedy, in the second part of a copyright interview published Monday in the Boston Globe, explained his actions after the accident five years ago.

Kennedy did not report the accident until about eight hours after his car plunged off a narrow bridge into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island.

When asked about it by friends, Kennedy said he told them about "my own anguish and anxiety of that evening, the thoughts that went through my mind, my sense and feeling that somehow it had been almost miraculous that I had escaped from that car and I had not given up hope all night long that by some miracle Mary Jo would have escaped from the car as well."

"I never recalled how I was able to get out from the car and that perhaps by some grace of God that she may have gotten out and that when the dawn came and Mary Jo actually returned to the cottage and how about—how I actually willed that all night long and how I had really hoped that was going to be and prayed that was going to be the case."

Kennedy said he told two associates that he would go back to Edgartown to report the accident to police but nearly drowned when he swam the channel that separates the island from the village.

He said, "By the time that I arrived on the other shore, I was absolutely spent. Absolutely exhausted. And just saying 'I just can't do it. I just can't do it. I just can't do it.' I remember walking up toward the Shiretown Inn and walking through the front entrance and just going up to my room."

The accident occurred July 18, 1969. When Kennedy dropped out of contention last month for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, he said Chappaquiddick was not a factor but would have been a campaign issue.

"Let me say there has been a great deal of ugly speculation about the conduct of Mary Jo Kennedy, myself which is completely inaccurate and completely untrue... and the defamation or attempted defamation of her character is one of the aspects I regret most deeply," Kennedy said.

Rockefeller's loans disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President designate Nelson A. Rockefeller said Monday he has made loans of $507,650 to personal friends, business associates or relatives over the past 17 years.

Rockefeller disclosed the information in letters to Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., of the Senate Rules Committee and Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., of the House Judiciary Committee.

The former New York governor is scheduled to testify before the Senate committee Nov. 13 on his earlier disclosures of nearly $2 million in gifts to public officials and staff aides during his 15 years in Albany.

The Judiciary Committee is to conduct hearings on President Ford's vice presidential nominee after the Senate panel has completed its probe.

The committee chairmen had requested a listing of Rockefeller's loans between 1957 and 1967 but Rockefeller said he was including all loans made from 1957 through Oct. 1, 1974.

"Virtually all of these loans were made to close personal friends, associates or members of my family," Rockefeller said.

The largest loan to any individual was to Robert Anderson, who served as secretary of the Treasury during the Eisenhower administration and who was described by Rockefeller as a long-time friend.

According to the three-page list, Anderson received a $60,000 loan Jan. 2, 1957 and another $24,000 on April 1, 1957. Both loans were repaid in full June 6, 1957, nearly two months before Anderson became Treasury secretary.

Y students swing to 'Rock the Boat'

By RON DENNISON
Universe Staff Writer

In a concert long overdue at BYU, the Hues Corporation delivered an enthusiastic show before a rather sparse audience in the ELWC Ballroom Friday evening.

Although only 1,700 students were there to witness the concert, the Hues Corporation hardly seemed bothered by the disappointing turnout.

From the instant they took the stage, the group from Los Angeles delivered a concert packed with liquid soul that slowly dissolved into funk. In between it all, the group put on a fast-paced display of dancing.

But it was the enthusiasm and fresh clean soul approach that spelled the biggest reason for their success Friday night. Unlike most rock and soft rock concerts, the Hues Corporation actually looked like they were enjoying themselves.

Stepping up to the mikes, the three members of the group, H. Ann Kelly, St. Clair Lee, and Fleming Williams displayed an act that resembled a Las Vegas style of entertainment.

From the moment the Hues Corporation began, the audience was with them. As the Hues Corporation boogied through their opening numbers, the crowd responded accordingly.

Their selection of musical numbers included their own hits along with songs from Curtis Mayfield, The Temptations and Diana Ross. The group sang "Papa Was A Rollin' Sone," "Love Train" and Diana Ross's "Touch Me In The Morning."

As the concert progressed, the Hues Corporation finally sang one of their hit records. The crowd clapped in time and the group performed "Rockin' Soul," their latest release which has already sold over 200,000 copies.

Following that number the group sang "Love Train," which followed that with the title song from their album called "Freedom For The Stallion."

Along with their successful dancing and singing routine, the group was dressed in some rather stunning outfits. H. Ann Kelly, in addition to being the hit of the evening, is also a fashion freak. Friday evening she wore patterned alderden slacks with a vest to match and a white blouse. Fleming and St. Clair wore similar cut denim pants and matching shirts.

The group's final number was its biggest record to date, "Rock The Boat," which hit number one on the billboard charts and has sold over three million copies, brought the already clapping and cheering audience to its feet.

As the song opened, St. Clair yelled, "We are going to rock BYU." The shout seemed all the crowd needed. As St. Clair gave instructions, the crowd swayed to the left and then to the right.

When the song ended and Hues Corporation ran off the stage the crowd responded with shouts of "more more," and began to stomp their feet on the ballroom floor.

Much to the delight of the crowd, the group returned to again sing "Rock The Boat."

H. Ann Kelly of the Hues Corporation sang to an enthusiastic BYU audience.

This time sporadic dancing broke out in the crowd, several people broke to the front, and with St. Clair's urging, sang into his mikes.

All in all, the concert featured a group that had a well polished, enthusiastic act. There was perhaps one fault—it lasted only one hour.

international chamber groups and was concert master of the Symphony Orchestra in Lubacovce, Czechoslovakia.

Having just moved to Canada, Mr. Vrba has toured both Canada and the United States, visiting universities and music festivals. Included in his performance will be works by Beethoven, Mozart and Mendelssohn. Admission is without charge.

Film shows advertising in new light

"TV COMMERCIALS: The American Counterpart of Fertility Rites" will be shown today at 7:30 p.m. in 377 ESTB.

The second in the bimonthly film series "The Dimensions of Man," the presentation is a film cross-section of recent television commercials compiled for anthropological commentary.

"These ads may be labeled 'consumption rituals,'" said Dr. Merin Myers, chairman of the Department of Anthropology and Archaeology, "and compared to magical practices in non-industrial societies. By portraying them as such, we hope to create greater insight and understanding of the role and effect advertising has on the value system in American culture."

"Such films as these provide us with the opportunity to see ourselves in a wider human context," said John Hawkins, a new member of the department. "After all, if you want to understand the nature of man, you must come to know him in all his social and cultural settings."

In the discussion following the movie, Dr. Myers will explore the thesis that TV commercials are comparable to first fruits ceremonies and fertility rites.

Visting professor performs on organ

BYU students enjoyed a presentation of classical organ music by Don A. Vollstedt, from the University of Colorado, who performed music from French and baroque composers at the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

Although his performance had a few errors, the organist showed versatility in organ playing at the Thursday night recital. It was one of a series presented by the College of Fine Arts and Communications.

Vollstedt opened with "Fantasy in A Major" by Cesar Franck. His performance of Franck and other French music was hampered by BYU's Walker organ, a baroque instrument which lacks enclosed pipes that can be made louder or softer by adjusting a pedal to control volume.

His next pieces, "Three Chorale Preludes" and "Prelude and Fugue in D Major" by J.S. Bach were better performed. Vollstedt played the chorales using a solo stop in the pedal or keyboards. This contrasted well. The "Prelude and Fugue" was played at a lively speed, and the difficult pedal work demonstrated Vollstedt's developed pedal technique.

"Homage to Frescobaldi" by Jean Langlais was a modern piece which contrasted solo flute stops against the celeste stops of the organ. Vollstedt's registration (selection of stops) was well chosen for this light piece.

His concluding number, "Fantasy in F Minor" by W.A. Mozart, was well performed, and likewise well received by the audience. The difficult piece was written by Mozart at the time he was poverty stricken and having trouble selling his compositions. It was originally composed for a music box which Mozart sold to a wealthy man.

In this performance, Vollstedt used the full resources of the organ.

At the reception after the performance, Vollstedt said that his performance should have been better. However, the many complimentary remarks he received from the audience indicated the recital was enjoyed.

Vollstedt is an associate professor in the division of organ and church music of the University of Colorado College of Music.
